

Inhalation Insights on tour

The next steps in the Dry Powder Inhalation Technology (DPI) symposia series will be Argentina and Brazil.

Following the successful kick-off session in Kuala Lumpur and three other events in the US, Inhalation Insights will continue in South America in November. At the symposia series, jointly initiated by Harro Höfliger and partner companies, industry experts will talk about the challenges and new developments in DPI technology. Presentations and panel discussions will focus on providing direct information and access to useful expertise in key DPI areas such as carrier material, filling and device technologies, quality assurance and the latest market trends.

“Our series of events and the associated transfer of know-how are very well received by the participants. We are pleased that there is such significant interest in practical insights into the production and development of DPI products,” says Marco Laackmann, Leader Business Unit Inhalation at Harro Höfliger.

The participants use Inhalation Insights to gain first-hand information along the entire process chain, from powder characterization to safe packaging for sensitive products. ■
